CHAPTER 1

THE PRODUCTION WORKFLOW

A repeatable 6-step system for creating consistent, high-quality dark fantasy art.

Even the best prompts fail without a proper workflow. This chapter gives you a battle-tested, 6-step production pipeline used by professional AI artists. Follow it in order — every shortcut creates compounding problems downstream.

1 DEFINE THE SCENE INTENTION

Before writing a single word, answer three questions: Who or what is the subject? What is the emotional tone? What is the viewer meant to feel? Write these answers in plain language. Your prompt is a translation of this intention — not the intention itself.

2 LOCK IN THE STYLE BLOCK

Start every prompt with the complete Locked Style Block. Do not modify it. Do not omit parameters. The block ensures visual consistency across your entire body of work. If a specific image demands a different style, create a separate style block and apply it consistently — never mix style blocks within a series.

3 BUILD THE SUBJECT LAYER

Describe your subject using the building blocks from the Portrait Pack: Pose → Expression → Clothing → Physical Details. Stack in order of importance, most important first. Midjourney weights earlier words more heavily. Five precise words beat twenty vague ones.

4 LAYER ENVIRONMENT & ATMOSPHERE

After the subject, add environment context: location, time of day, weather, and the dominant light source. Then add a single atmospheric modifier — the mood should come through the lighting, not from adjectives like "spooky" or "epic." Let the environment do the emotional work.

5 GENERATE 4 VARIATIONS, EVALUATE CRITICALLY

Always generate at least 4 images per prompt. Evaluate on: composition first, then lighting, then subject accuracy. Eliminate any image where the composition fails. From the survivors, select the one with the strongest single light source and deepest shadow contrast.

6 REFINE WITH TARGETED VARIATIONS

Use your platform's variation/remix tools to refine only specific aspects of the selected image. Change one variable at a time. Run 2–3 targeted variation rounds maximum. After that, diminishing returns set in.

PRO WORKFLOW TIP

Save every prompt that produces a strong result in a dedicated document with the image filename. Within two weeks of consistent work, you will have a personal prompt library tuned to your specific aesthetic — far more valuable than

CHAPTER 11

STYLE RECIPES: MIX & MATCH

8 curated aesthetic formulas. Preview shows 2 of 8 — full bundle unlocks all chapters.

Each recipe is a self-contained aesthetic system. Use the modifier block to replace or supplement the Locked Style Block when you want a distinct visual language. Never blend more than two recipes in a single image.

I. GOTHIC HORROR

Heavy shadows dominate. Architecture looms. The palette is near-monochromatic: deep charcoal, bone white, dried-blood crimson. Every scene implies an unseen threat. Inspired by German Expressionism.

```
gothic horror oil painting, expressionist shadows, high contrast black and white with crimson accent, crumbling gothic architecture, mist-shrouded cobblestones, Victorian gaslight, psychological dread --ar 2:3 --v 6.1 --style raw --q 2
```

II. FAIRYTALE DARK

Brothers Grimm meets Arthur Rackham. Forests are sentient. Magic is dangerous, not whimsical. Rich jewel tones — emerald, sapphire, amber — against deep forest blacks.

```
dark fairytale illustration, Arthur Rackham ink style, jewel-toned palette emerald and amber, twisted enchanted forest, moonlight through dense canopy, illustrated storybook aesthetic, folklore atmosphere --ar 2:3 --v 6.1 --style expressive
